Parking bylaw found invalid

By Don Staruk

A state land court judge last week found the town was wrong in applying the 1985 parking bylaw to the former bowling alley building on Park Street and ordered the building inspector to issue a building permit to the developers.

Judge Margaret Sullivan on Aug. 27 ruled that the town was wrong to require Benjamin Osgood and G. Bradley Richards, trustees of Park Street Development Trust, to abide by the town parking bylaw, approved at Town Meeting in 1985, which required 87 parking spaces for the building.

Gary Coon wants to stick around

Last week, the Townsmen published profiles on the three Democrats who face off in the Sept. 15 state primary for the chance to run against Rep. Gary Coon, R-Andover. Rep. Coon is unopposed in the primary for the 17th Essex District seat in the House of Representatives.

Gary Coon
Age: 28
Address: C1 Colonial Drive
Education: Bachelor's degree in business management, Babson College
Job: State representative

Personal: Single, born and raised in Andover

By Don Staruk

Gary Coon is running for re-election because he remembers the mess Massachusetts was in two years ago with proposed tax increases, no balanced budget and a reputation as the worst managed state in the country, and he wants to make sure it doesn't return to that.

"Although we've made what I think is very good progress in the last 19 months, I'm concerned with the possibility of collective amnesia," Rep. Coon said this week. "I'd like to stick around and make sure that doesn't happen."

The current administration and legislature have cut taxes five times in 19 months, he said. They've repealed the 5-percent sales tax on business services, instituted a research and development tax credit, (which Mr. Coon said has been called "the most attractive in the country"), reduced the income tax from 6.25 percent to 5.95 percent, phased out the estate tax, or "death tax," which stopped chasing elders to places such as Florida, and cut the deeds excise tax in half, according to Mr. Coon.

"That's a sharp contrast to the billion dollar tax increase of recent years," Rep. Coon said.

He will do whatever he can to continue to make Massachusetts attractive to business and shed the "state of taxachusetts label," Rep. Coon said.

If returned to office, Rep. Coon said he will push for a constitutional amendment requiring a two-thirds vote in both branches of the Legislature before any taxes could be raised in the future.

That would help build confidence for businesses looking at settling in this state, he said.

Education

The number-one priority of residents he has talked with in his door-to-door campaign has been education, and he'd like to see the state take more of a role in improving the quality of education, Rep. Coon said.

"I'd like the state to help the fellas like Fred Fitzgerald, whose goal is to make the Andover schools number one in the nation," Rep. Coon said.

Rep. Coon voted to override Gov. Weld's recent veto of the $186 million in education funding so the money could go to cities and towns. And he thinks that's where the money should be spent.

"I think that the intention of the school money, $1,000 per student, I think it should be spent in the schools," Rep. Coon said. "That wasn't the only local aid Andover got. That's additional money for education."

In addition, about $38,000 in lottery money came back to the town in local aid.

Gov. Weld

"I've been pleased and I've been getting good reaction out in the community on his performance," Rep. Coon said.

The governor's main goal was to get the fiscal situation under control, and he's done that, according to Rep. Coon.

"The situation has really stabilized," he said. "For the rookie governor who everybody said was going to get his head handed to him, it's been anything but that."

One of the governor's strengths is that he listens to people, according to Rep. Coon.

"Even Democrats can have a conversation with him, compared to the previous administration, which took the attitude of, 'I have all the right answers and I don't even have to listen to you,'" Rep. Coon said.

Crime

Rep. Coon said he wants to help Massachusetts lose its liberal image in dealing with crime.

"That's one of the reasons I've been pushing hard on making tougher penalties on car theft," Rep. Coon said. "I've been able to get the auto theft legislation as part of the governor's crime package."

That's a good first step and hopefully the Legislature will now give it a hearing, he said.

Welfare

Rep. Coon supports workfare with enterprise zones to provide job opportunities, and said he wants to make sure Massachusetts is attractive as an opportunity state, not a welfare state.

Abortion

"I support legalized abortion to 24 weeks," which is consistent with Roe v. Wade (1973), Rep. Coon said.

Term limits

Mr. Coon is one of the original 15 signers of the term-limit legislation and would like to get term limits on the ballot so people can decide whether they want a citizen Legislature. This is one of the issues he campaigned on in 1990 and which has not been realized.

Privatization

Privatization of poorly managed public services, specifically the Hines Auditorium, is another of Rep. Coon's campaign

NEWS IN BRIEF

71-year-old charged with shooting at boy

By Don Staruk

A 10-year-old Maple Avenue boy was allegedly shot in the head with a BB gun Sunday evening while playing in his yard. A neighbor was charged in the shooting.

The boy, whose mother asked that his name not be used, was allegedly shot at about 6 p.m. while climbing on a dog cage in his own back yard with his brother and cousin. The boy came into the house in hysterics, saying the BB knocked off his baseball cap, but he was not hurt, according to the police report.

The boy's mother confronted Arthur Guillet, 71, the neighbor who lives at 28 Maple Ave., while he allegedly still had the rifle in his hands. Mr. Guillet allegedly said he had only shot at a tree. But Mr. Guillet allegedly stood at the edge of his yard, raised the BB rifle, aimed and shot at the boy, according to the police.

Officer John Pathiakos questioned Mr. Guillet and determined he was intoxicated. Mr. Guillet was then arrested and charged with assault and battery with a dangerous weapon.

Mr. Guillet's wife told police that her daughter had tried to take the gun away from Mr. Guillet prior to the shooting, according to police.

Mr. Guillet has been bothered by children playing in the neighborhood before, according to police. But the boys told police they had not been bothering Mr. Guillet prior to the Sunday's incident.

An emergency restraining order was issued Sunday restricting Mr. Guillet from going near the MacKenzie house. Mr. Guillet was arraigned in Lawrence District Court Tuesday, Sept. 1, where police expected the restraining order to be extended in exchange for his release on personal recognizance. Officer John Pathiakos is investigating the incident.

New site for oil recycling

The waste oil recycling and disposal program operated by the Andover and North Andover health departments has scheduled its dates for September and October. The collection tank's new location is at the DPW garage at 384 Osgood St., North Andover. Workers there will accept oil on Saturday, Sept. 12, and Oct. 17, from 9 a.m. until noon and Wednesday, Sept. 9, and Oct. 14 from 4 to 7 p.m.

Residents may dispose of a maximum of 10 gallons at a charge of 50 cents per gallon. Proof of residency is required.

Call the Andover Health Department at 470-3800, Ext. 255, with any questions. Street maps with directions to the new location are available at the health department office.

Town to test cholesterol

The Andover Board of Health will hold a cholesterol screening clinic Wednesday, Sept. 16, from 9 a.m. until noon. An appointment is necessary.

The simple fingerstick test for total cholesterol costs $5 and does not require fasting. The program includes dietary counseling by the public health nurse and referral to your private physician for follow-up care as needed.

For further information or an appointment, call the health department at 470-3800, Ext. 255.

Making Andover safe for bicyclists

Many of the town's storm/sewer gratings on the road have been turned to make bicycling safer, according to Margaret Pustell, a member of the Andover Bicycle Committee. In addition, the gratings on state roads also have been turned, she said, and credits State Rep. Gary Coon, R-Andover, with accomplishing that.

Residents protest train whistles

Dozens of Andover residents have signed a petition protesting what they are saying is unnecessary and excessive horn blowing by trains going through town.

Leo Doherty, of 11 Buxton Court, has already collected signatures from residents of his neighborhood and along Railroad and Cuba streets. He wants to get more signatures before he presents the petitions to Rep. Gary Coon, with the hope that Rep. Coon can get the attention of the Massachusetts Bay Transportation Authority.

"The noise denies residents of the right to quiet enjoyment and is having an effect on the desirability of neighborhoods and the value of property," Mr. Doherty said. "The problem is bad and is very noisy. They'll wake you up out of a sound sleep."

The trains blow their horns every time they approach the intersections at Essex Street, St. Augustine Cemetery, Andover Street in Ballardvale and Lowell Junction Road.

The horn blasts have noticeably increased both in frequency and intensity in the last four or five months, Mr. Doherty said last week. Telephone complaints to the MBTA have gone unheeded, he said.

The MBTA is compensating with the horns for inadequate safety at the Fear that a friend might have drowned while swimming allegedly caused the driver of this car to lose control on Harold Parker Road and strike a tree before landing in Field Pond early Saturday morning.

Three persons, all in their early 20s, went swimming in the pond at about 4 a.m., according to Andover police. When only two came out, they thought the third may have drowned. The pair, and a fourth person, reported the possible drowning to state police just before 5 a.m. and crashed the car while speeding back to the pond to look for their friend. No one was seriously hurt. State police dive teams were called to search the pond, but were canceled when the missing woman was located by police walking on a nearby road at 6:20 a.m. She had gotten lost while swimming.

The driver of the car was from Billerica and the car's owner was from Bedford. Andover police were unsure where the other two individuals were from and state police, who were handling the incident, had no other details this week.

crossings, Mr. Doherty said. He pointed to two recent incidents, one in which the gate at Lowell Junction Road was torn down and the other in which a car was struck by a train at Andover Street last week, as examples of the poor safety at the crossings.

Mr. Doherty said he's also checking on the decibel level of the horn blasts to see if they violate any noise laws. Similar complaints are being waged against the MBTA in the town of Ashland.

Wendy Wakeman, aide to Rep. Coon, said last week that Rep. Coon has looked into the problem and found that the frequency of the whistles are regulated by MBTA policy. He has been unable to get anything done about the problem at the administrative level. But taking the problem to the legislative level might be going a bit too far, she said.

Anyone interested in signing the petition can contact Mr. Doherty at 475-1260.

Updating town's AIDS attendance policy

By Lisa Boudreau

Parents are not required to inform schools if their children have AIDS. Doctors, however, are obligated to report HIV or AIDS cases to the state, but not to hometown officials, according to Everett Penney, Andover's health director.

Currently, students can take AIDS awareness and prevention education classes in grades five through 12 with parental permission.

Brenda O'Brien, the schools' health education coordinator, would like to include age appropriate education related to AIDS in kindergarten through grade four.

School officials in Andover are looking to the community to help update the town's attendance policy for students with HIV infection and AIDS, as well as step up the schools' prevention and education programs.

The School Committee called for parent and community volunteers at its Tuesday night meeting, to work on a subcommittee charged with updating the 5-year-old AIDS policy, as recommended by the state departments of education and health. Anyone interested in serving on the subcommittee should contact the superintendent of schools at 470-1700.

Ms. O'Brien told the committee Tuesday that the policy Andover adopted in 1987 does not go far enough to protect students' and families' rights to attend school, or maintain confidentiality in the schools and does not advocate enough staff and student training in prevention education for all blood-borne diseases, including Hepatitis B.

"The essence of the policy will not be changed, it will just be updated with the most accurate information currently available that was not available five or six years ago," Mr. O'Brien.

Susan Jenkins, School Committee chairwoman, said she is pleased the committee wants to include community and parent volunteers in the decision making process.

"This is not just a school issue. AIDS is a community issue," she said.

The new state recommendations relax restrictions for attendance, including behaviors previously suspected of posing a risk of HIV transmission, such as biting and incontinence. State and federal health officials now say that only uncontrolled and chronic bleeding should prohibit an infected student from attending school.

Changes in how schools deal with confidentiality issues are also included in new policy recommendations.

Under Massachusetts law, if a parent decides to inform a school official, that official is not bound to disclose the information unless given informed, written consent from the parent. The state recommends specific release forms be signed, naming the individuals to be told and expressly what information may be released.

The state also recommends schools not keep HIV and AIDS-related medical records in the building. Also recommended is that schools train all staff, not just school health and custodial employees, in "universal precautions" for cleaning any body fluids spilled in the school setting.

Universal precautions are steps that should be taken in all cases to reduce risk of contracting HIV and Hepatitis B viruses. Precautions include keeping on hand adequate supplies of mops, buckets, bleach, hot water, hand soap, disposable towels and latex gloves. All human blood spills should be cleaned promptly with a solution of one part bleach to 10 parts water.

The subcommittee will work with Ms. O'Brien and other health officials and report back to the School Committee by the beginning of October. Ms. O'Brien and the subcommittee will also make recommendations for updating staff training and enhancing prevention education classes in the school's health curriculum.

THE REAL ESTATE CORNER

LENDERS TIGHTEN GUIDELINES FOR HOMEBUYERS

In some parts of the country, record numbers of homeowners are defaulting on their mortgages, and lenders are looking for ways to cut their losses on future loans. If you're applying for a loan, you can expect your lender to scrutinize the mortgage application more closely than they may have in the past.

Some lenders are asking for much more verification of customers' liquid assets. First, they want to be sure that you aren't borrowing any part of your down payment. Any large deposits into your checking or savings account may need some explanation of where they came from. If you received part of your funds from a relative, you will be required to have a gift letter stating that the money wasn't a loan. If you've sent in late payments on installment loans, you may have to write a letter offering reasons why you were delinquent. Therefore, the process of applying for a loan can involve more paper work and red tape than was the case in years past.

If you are considering a move, contact the professionals at Century 21 Minuteman Realty. Call us at 475-1243, or stop by our office at 2 Elm Square.

Timothy Wilson

Sept. 10.

"Everyone has been very friendly and I feel very welcomed already," Mr. Wilson told the Townsmen Wednesday.

The School Committee passed over two Andover finalists, Tuesday, Sept. 1, and chose the Central Massachusetts administrator to be South's acting principal this year. The committee will choose a permanent principal this spring.

Mr. Wilson, 51, of Natick, was chosen over Andover educators Betty Anne Coyle and Gwendolyn Warwick, as well as 40 other applicants.

Mark McQuillan, superintendent of schools, said the decision was a very difficult one, but he believes Mr. Wilson has more administration experience than the other finalists.

Ms. Coyle is a learning specialist in the elementary schools and Ms. Warwick is a classroom teacher, who was acting principal at South during the 1988-'89 school year.

Former South Principal Jade Reitman was transferred to Sanborn Elementary last month to replace Eileen Woods, who was hired earlier this summer to be the schools' assistant superintendent.

No salary has been announced for Mr. Wilson, but Ms. Reitman made $62,374 last year. Mr. Wilson's appointment was the sixth administration placement this year. The other three are Charles Friel's promotion from assistant principal to principal at West Elementary School and former Methuen administrator Denise Littlefield, to fill the assistant principal vacancy, and Floyd McManus to the principal position at Doherty Middle School.

Mr. Wilson was the principal of the 380-student Brimfield Elementary School in Central Massachusetts for two years. South Elementary has 486 students.

Mr. Wilson is married to Trudy Wilson, a social worker and administrator at Boston University. They have two college-age daughters and a 5-year-old daughter.

Mr. Wilson has a bachelor's degree in English, a master's degree in school administration and curriculum and is certified as elementary and secondary school principals. He worked for the state department of education 1976-'90 as a regional Title I supervisor, an early childhood special education specialist and a regional team leader for curriculum and instruction.

During his interview with the School Committee two weeks ago, Mr. Wilson said his strengths were his leadership and curriculum development talents.

He told the Townsmen one of his immediate goals is to bring educators and parents together to help him begin the school year smoothly.

Susan Callahan is thankful to be alive.

Bleeding from the throat, she and her husband feared the worst when she arrived at the New England Memorial Hospital Emergency Room. But within 12 hours, Susan went from being at death's door to being a very lucky, stabilized patient.

Dr. José Marcal performed an emergency endoscopic procedure that enabled him not only to diagnose a burst blood vessel but, remarkably, to treat the life-threatening condition right in the emergency room. Dr. Marcal's quick response, and his ability to perform this advanced procedure, not only saved Susan from surgery; it saved her, period.

New England Memorial Hospital is on the forefront of endoscopic diagnosis and treatment. Susan Callahan gratefully acknowledges that without Dr. Marcal, without the quick attention in the emergency room, and without a technological breakthrough like endoscopy, she wouldn't have a story to tell. Especially one with a happy ending.

PRACTICAL SOLUTIONS

ADOPT A CLASSROOM. I will urge area businesses to "adopt a classroom." Teachers often have great ideas to inspire their students creatively but lack the resources — art materials, computers, funds for a field trip — to carry out a project. Many local businesses would be happy to help, if asked.

HELP CREATE NEW JOBS LOCALLY. I will a) promote this area to out-of-state companies interested in re-locating, b) work with community leaders in the cities to revitalize and rebuild, c) use my district offices to help unemployed residents connect with potential employers, d) urge area industry to expand job re-training programs, e) encourage local companies to offer apprenticeships for high school graduates, f) help struggling businesses cut through bureaucratic red tape.

SET A NEW EXAMPLE. As congressman, I would: a) Reimburse the U.S. Treasury for perks and benefits not available to the average citizen. b) Not seek re-election beyond eight years, and vote to enact term limits on career politicians. c) End the tax-paid propaganda of mass mailings. d) Vote against any Congressional perk, pay hike or pension increase.

FIGHT WASTEFUL SPENDING. 1) Create the tools to cut the deficit — a line item veto, the balanced budget amendment, sunrise/sunset legislation, a freeze on federal hiring... 2) Streamline, computerize and down-size the bureaucracy. 3) Implement more savings from the Grace Commission. 4) Privatize more. 5) Congress should set an example of cost-cutting by reducing its own bloated staff and cutting its perks and privileges. 6) Hold the line on taxes.

CURRICULUM OF HOPE. For urban schools in our district, I want to help create an after-hours "curriculum of hope." We will ask successful role models — executives, athletes, artists, all kinds of people — to talk with students about how hard work pays off in the real world. We can teach practical skills such as: how to look for a job, how to prepare for a job interview, how to get an apprenticeship, how to start a business, how to get into college... Our urban students need practical advice, role models, and hope.

Fifth-graders observe town Water Treatment Plant

The following article was provided by Katherine Kloss, member, Town of Andover Water Conservation Commission. One of a series of articles by the commission, it describes the reactions of some of Andover's younger citizens to the work done at the water treatment plant.

Before school let out for summer vacation, Ms. Browning's fifth-grade class from Sanborn School took a field trip with Joyce Ringleb to the Andover Water Treatment Plant.

Andover Public Schools will reopen Sept. 10th

The first day of school is Thursday, Sept. 10, for most Andover public school students, except 10th, 11th and 12th graders at the high school. Only ninth graders should report to the high school Thursday, Sept. 10.

Students in grades 10 through 12 will begin school a day later, on Friday, Sept. 11. Ninth graders should report to the front of the school building, where they will be met by teachers and administrators and directed to their homerooms.

AHS homerooms were printed in the Townsmen's Back-to-School section last Thursday, Aug. 27.

The following comments were made by the students after their visit.

Desiree Croteau:

"The water treatment plant is very important because it makes it possible for us to have healthy water to drink."

Justin Coppola:

"I was amazed that such a simple thing like water is such a complicated and lengthy process to make it safe so that the people of Andover can drink the water."

Debbie Bauer:

"The place we went to today was an exciting place that people from all around the world come to visit. We went to the Water Treatment Plant."

Kim Davidson:

"The water filtration facilities are made to treat 24 million gallons per day. The two-story main building is made of concrete, which looks nice with the wooded area."

Justin Coppola:

"It uses computers to make sure everything is working correctly. If there is a problem like a broken pump, the computer will report it on the computer screen. This helps locate problems."

Mark Herling:

"The plant in Andover is a new model that is extremely high-tech. The way the plant works is the water that comes from Haggetts Pond goes through screens that take out all the big stuff."

The Robert E. McQuade Water Treatment Plant treats and purifies drinking water for the town of Andover.

Jeff Newman:

"One of the newest ideas was to add ozone bubbles to remove the odors and tastes from the water. To find out more, read on."

Jeremy Swerdlow:

"Then we saw the ozone generators that zap dry air with high-voltage electricity. It gets pumped to a tank which holds water to remove bad tastes and smells from the water and helps clear the water, too."

Kerri Chandler:

"The ozonated air will bubble through the water in the contact basin, which is then fixed to destroy bad ozone before the release to the atmosphere."

Choices prepares young women to make decisions

Choices is a teen-age women's program of self-awareness and personal planning, sponsored by the American Association of University Women. Choices is also a study course and community project. The course will be offered from 2:05 to 3:30 p.m. (last bus) at Doherty and West Middle schools for girls in grades 6-8.

The program helps young women between the ages of 11 and 16 discover the importance of life planning and responsible decision-making in all areas of their lives. It is designed by AAUW to them clarify what they want from life and how they intend to get it.

Choices: A Teen Woman's Journal of Self-Awareness and Personal Planning presents thought-provoking exercises in a workbook format. It emphasizes self-awareness and personal planning with the purpose of enabling participants to clarify values and set personal goals as they move toward adulthood. Throughout the course, small groups will meet for discussion sessions led by an adult facilitator. A celebration at the end of the program will recognize the young women and leaders who have completed the program.

Family

Responsibility

Tony's a family man and father of two, so he understands how tough it is raising a family these days. That's why he'll work to keep employment high and taxes in check. As a former school teacher, Tony will take a leadership role in children's issues like education, healthcare and domestic violence.

Individual

Responsibility

Tony believes that the people responsible for the increase in auto theft, arson and welfare abuse need to pay for their actions, not the taxpayer. That's why Tony has helped individual companies get repaired after damage to their goods, homes, the auto insurance industry, and fix the welfare system so that responsibility is shifted to individuals and not the state. Tony knows the current Beacon Hill crowd and make it work. He's ready to take on the responsibility. All he needs is your vote.

Sanborn fifth-graders visit the water treatment plant

Sean Wilson:

"Then it is pumped to the rapid mix and flocculation basins, where it is mixed with chemicals at certain speeds."

Jeff Newman:

"In this stage different chemicals are added to the water to make the particles cluster. After they get heavy, they fall to the bottom of the basin."

Robyn Allen:

"Secondly, they travel the water outside and add alum and that cleans the water and makes the germs and gunk stick together and go to the side or bottom of the pool."

Sean Wilson:

"It is then pumped through granulated activated carbon and sand to filter out particles and bad taste. It is then disinfected with chlorine and stored until it is pumped to our homes."

Josh Shulman:

"My favorite part was the lab. We got to fool around with neat gadgets and test water."

Charlene MacNeil:

"The group I was in went to the lab. The instructor I was with was real nice. He showed us raw water and then put something in it to make it clean."

Liesl Finn:

"It's tested in a lab to see if it's safe for us to drink. It's cleaned and they take the smell and taste out."

Matt James:

"The plant today is very modern with hi tech stuff that would take me a million years to learn how to use."

Jennifer Pinta:

"The water treatment plant was very amusing. It taught me that I shouldn't take water for granted."

"I also found out it's not that easy to make clean water."

Joey Dolan:

"I enjoyed going to the Andover Water Treatment Plant."

Sean Higgins:

"I was so interested I didn't want to leave. I couldn't believe it when he said that you can only drink one percent of the water in the world."

Laura Fish:

"If we didn't have the water treatment plant, we would be drinking bathing water and putting out fires with an unsatisfying taste and odorous water."

Justin Yee:

"The plant runs 365 days a year. There's a computer-based control system which lets them know if anything is wrong."

"Just remember, we can't drink water that's dirty, so be thankful you have a water treatment plant you can trust."

Andover boy, 14, killed in shooting

By Don Staruk

A 14-year-old Andover boy was killed early last Wednesday morning, Aug. 26, after he was shot by his cousin at the cousin's house in Billerica.

Ian T. Sakowich, 14, of 4 Colonial Drive, an Andover High School football player who would have started his sophomore year next week, was shot at about 12:45 a.m. in the kitchen of the cousin's house on South Street in Billerica.

The cousin, Morgan Sakowich, 15, told police he found the .25 caliber handgun while walking along the shore of nearby Nutting Lake at about midnight on Tuesday. It was unclear whether Ian was with him at the time. Everyone else in the house was in bed and the two boys were in the kitchen of the house with Ian's older brother, Tim Jr., 17, when Ian was shot in the head. He died a short time later at Lahey Clinic in Burlington.

The boys thought the gun was a toy and it went off while Morgan was playing with it, according to reports.

The cousin has not been charged, according to Jill Reilly, spokeswoman at the Middlesex district attorney's office.

"It is believed to be accidental, but is still under investigation," Ms. Reilly said Tuesday.

A man who police have not identified went to Billerica police on Wednesday afternoon after hearing about the shooting to report his gun, and the briefcase it was stored in, had been stolen from his car sometime Tuesday night. He feared it may have been involved in the shooting, and it was, according to Ms. Reilly.

The man, who lived near the cousins' house, owned the gun for 15 years and had a permit to carry it.

He may still face a charge for leaving the weapon unattended in a vehicle, a charge punishable by a fine, according to Ms. Reilly.

Ian lived with his mother, Colleen Gaumond, at Colonial Drive. His parents are divorced and he was visiting with his father, Timothy M. Sakowich, and brother, Tim Jr., 17, at the house they shared with the boys' grandmother in Billerica.

State police from the Middlesex district attorney's office are investigating the shooting with Billerica police.

OBITUARIES

Ian T. Sakowich Loved sports, cards

Classmates of Ian T. Sakowich, who would have been a sophomore at Andover High this fall, will observe a moment of silence for the 14-year-old teen who died Wednesday, Aug. 26, after being accidentally shot in Billerica.

Ian was born in Lowell and lived with his mother, Colleen, and her husband, Robert Gaumond, in Colonial Drive Apartments.

He was an avid collector of baseball cards. He was also a golf caddy at Indian Ridge Country Club.

Ian was a member of the AHS Freshman Football team that won the Merrimack Valley Conference championship last fall and the 1992 Merrimack Valley Conference Diving Team. He also played in the Andover Church and Ballardvale United leagues.

"Ian was a nice kid who always worked hard at practice," said Ken Pellerin, ASH freshman football coach.

"Even though he had an injury and didn't get to play a lot last year, he always had a smile on his face."

Tim Thomas, AHS principal, will address the sophomore class on Friday, Sept. 10, the first day of school. He said he will meet with sophomore class officers to plan a class memorial fund or other remembrance of Ian.

Members of his family include his father, Timothy Sakowich of Billerica; mother and her husband, Colleen and Robert Gaumond of Andover; brother, Timothy Sakowich Jr. of Billerica; grandmother, Mildred Beaumier of Billerica; and several aunts, uncles and cousins.

A Mass was held Saturday at St. Joseph Church. Burial was in St. Patrick Cemetery in Lowell.

Arrangements were by Burke Funeral Home, 390 North Main St.

Three fight for chance to challenge John Harris

Governor's Council appoints judges

By Lisa Boudreau

John Harris of Andover has no challengers from his own Republican party for re-election to the Fifth-District seat on the Governor's Council in the Tuesday, Sept. 15, state primary.

Edward Carroll of Lynn and Ronald Ford and Raffi Takesian, both of Methuen, are the three Democrats running in the primary, hoping to be the one who receives the most votes and runs against Mr. Harris in the November general election.

Mr. Harris was elected two years ago to the eight-member board that traces its roots to Colonial New England. The council was established in the 1700s by the British monarchy. Eight royal loyalists were appointed by the king to oversee the colonial governor. Since then the Governor's Council has provided a system of checks and balances in the state government.

The main responsibilities of the council are approving the governor's appointments of judges, approving weekly warrants to pay the three branches of state government, approving state contracts, investigating pardons, paroles and commutations of prison sentences, as well as investigating veterans' appeals for denied benefits.

Members receive $10,400 for each year of their two-year term. They also receive a telephone card paid for by the state and medical benefits and a pension.

Here's a look at the incumbent and his challengers.

John Harris, 50, lives at 31 Lincoln Circle with his wife, Patricia, and their three children, Sean, Kathleen and Erin. Mr. Harris is an independent consultant to nuclear power companies.

He has bachelor's and master's degrees from Northeastern University and a Russian language studies certificate from Syracuse University. Mr. Harris served in the Air Force from 1964 to 1968. The last two years he supervised a listening post in Northern Japan that intercepted Russian-military communications.

Qualifications

As a self-employed businessman, Mr. Harris said he has experienced first hand the impact government regulations can have on job productivity and economic growth.

"Most of (Governor's Council members) are lawyers or people whose livelihood depends on government positions. I come from a totally different perspective. Part of my consulting deals with high-tech businesses and information systems. I have a good understanding of how things can run efficiently and cost effectively," Mr. Harris said.

During his two-years on the council, Mr. Harris said he has made a difference on the board by pushing through a system of job performance reviews for judges on the Industrial Accident Board.

And more judges representing the Merrimack Valley have been appointed to higher courts during his tenure on the Governor's Council, he said.

"I'm also proud that we helped get a settlement on the new Braintree (state) prison site, saving taxpayers $1,500 per day in interest costs alone," he said.

Why run for re-election?

Mr. Harris said he has unfinished work to do on the Governor's Council.

"I was the first Republican elected from the Merrimack Valley and North Shore area in 30 years. For the first time in more than a generation, the Governor's Council is truly a bipartisan council that has been able to work

Andover man nominated to Superior Court

this way. And I look forward to the confirmation process."

The Governor's Council will hold public confirmation hearings on Wednesday, Sept. 9, at the Statehouse. A vote on the nomination is expected on Sept. 16.

Governor's Councilor John Harris, of Andover, said he expected Judge Borenstein to be confirmed.

"This is one of the best appointments that Dukakis made during his years and it will be Weld's too," Mr. Harris said this week. "We're lucky to have him serve the public. This is good news for Andover. The guy is impressive."

Judge Borenstein also spoke highly of Mr. Harris and his interest in the issues of criminal justice since he has been on the council.

"He has shown an interest and dedication to these issues that has been exemplary," Judge Borenstein said.

Judge Borenstein, 41, a native of Cuba, moved to this country just before his 11th birthday. He has lived in Andover for two years. Before that he lived two years in Boxford and two in Boston for 13 years before that.

His wife, Dr. Mauricia Alvarez, and their adopted son, Simon, 5, are from the Dominican Republic. She graduated from Abbot Academy and is a psychologist at Cambridge Hospital. Simon will start kindergarten at Shawheen this year.

Judge Borenstein's sister, Anita Adams, and her husband, Kenneth, also live in Andover.

It is an honor for the governor to appoint somebody with a Latino background, Judge Borenstein said. This nomination, and his entire career, "is a statement on how this country's been very good to me and to us, my family," he said.

The appointment is for life, or to the age of 70. It does not involve a raise, so Judge Borenstein will continue to receive his $80,375 salary.

Politics

Judge Borenstein wasn't even sure how he was registered as a voter, but said he had once been registered as a Democrat. The town clerk has him registered as an unenrolled voter.

"But when we become judges, and I've been a judge for six years, politics is the furthest thing from my mind," he said.

Judges are prohibited from participating in political activities by the canons of judicial conduct, he said.

"Judges have got to make decisions on the merits of cases," he said.

Massachusetts is one of only about a half dozen states where judges are appointed rather than elected, he said.

He was appointed to the bench in 1986 by Gov. Dukakis.

Experience

Judge Borenstein was awarded a bachelor's of arts degree "with distinction" from George Washington University in 1972, graduated from Northeastern University School of Law in 1975 and received a master's of law degree from Harvard Law School in 1983. He practiced civil and criminal law before his appointment as a judge in 1986.

He has taught full time at New England School of Law and in the clinical program at Harvard Law School, and part-time since 1985 at Northeastern, where he was chosen faculty speaker at the school's graduation last May.

He has presided over more than 70 jury trials and hundreds of trials without juries, both criminal and civil, he said.

"All kinds of cases. I do everything criminal, civil, juvenile - and cases involving families," he said.

But the majority of his time is spent on cases involving the care and protection of children.

"I have managed that and the juvenile delinquency part of the court for close to the six years I've been there," he said.

He was recently appointed by the state Supreme Judicial Court to its Commission on Juvenile Justice, Task Force on Custody.

Philosophy

His priorities are "treating everyone who appears before me with respect and dignity," including lawyers, litigants and witnesses, "providing people with an opportunity to be heard fairly, giving access to the justice system to all citizens, and maintaining a high level of integrity," he said.

His philosophy?

"If you've assaulted somebody and committed violence, some jail time is merited," he said.

He doesn't let the issue of overcrowding in jails affect his judgments, he said.

"If I decide that someone deserves jail, the issue of overcrowding for me is not relevant," he said. "I can't allow the issue of overcrowding to come into play."

But sentencing is complicated and he must consider who the defendant is, any previous record, the charges, any mandatory sentence, the wishes of the victim or victims, and the circumstances, Judge Borenstein said.

"I look at people who engage in assaultive and violent behavior toward other people as being those who merit more consideration for jail time," he said.

Those involved in crimes dealing with property are more apt to be considered for alternative sentencing.

"But I've also sent people to jail for property offenses such as larceny of a motor vehicle," he said.

He supports the idea of a boot-camp system so long as it includes a follow-up program.

"But I believe in it as a concept," he said.

Domestic violence is getting more attention by the courts, but is a much larger problem that has to be attacked on a much broader level of society, Judge Borenstein said.

"The court has a role. But it's a bigger issue than that," he said. "Every one views issues of domestic violence with more appreciation for serious these problems are."

But the court system has not, and could not, guarantee safety in a free society like this, Judge Borenstein said. Prevention through awareness and education, and giving people alternatives such as shelters, is where the attention has to be focused, according to Judge Borenstein.

Awareness and treatment are also the answers for dealing with drunk drivers, he said.

If we're really looking for answers to societal problems, we need to deal with them as a society, he said.

"The society and culture has to encourage socializing without drinking alcoholic beverages, for example," he said.

Reputation

"I've done many cases that are noteworthy," Judge Borenstein said.

Possibly the most well known was the case of a juvenile charged with murdering a student outside Lawrence High School in 1988.

"Right in front of Lawrence High School in the middle of lunch hour," he said.

Judge Borenstein transferred him to adult court and the man is now serving a sentence of life imprisonment for second-degree murder.

Judge Borenstein doesn't think he is too lenient, but said there are always going to be people who don't agree with a judgment.

"I think I've earned a reputation as a fair, hard working judge," Judge Borenstein said. "I have never sent anybody to jail who I felt didn't deserve it."

He's also let people go who some have felt should have done time, he said.

"He made the decision he thought was right," is how Judge Borenstein said people see him.

"I've had broad support from defense lawyers and prosecutors," he said.

He's never thrown a lawyer in jail for contempt.

"I respect lawyers who fight hard for their clients," he said. "The lawyers who gets in trouble with me are the ones who don't show up in court."

Changes in the court

The court has changed in his six years in Lawrence, according to Judge Borenstein.

"The volume has increased dramatically in all areas," he said. "In cases involving the abuse and neglect of children, we are the busiest court in the state."

And 60-70 percent of all cases in Lawrence involve someone who doesn't speak English, he said. Judge Borenstein is bilingual, fluent in Spanish.

The court has lost a lot of personnel, resources are fewer, "and the issues of safety have increased," he said.

"So court reform is not only inevitable, it's a must. There has to be some court reform so we can target the resources better," he said.

But his work has been interesting and intellectually challenging, he said.

"It's been the best six years of my life," he said.

The quality and dedication of the attorneys has been impressive, he said.

"We wouldn't make it without the lawyers who dedicate themselves to work there, often unrecognized," Judge Borenstein said.

The staff of the court works under difficult conditions and Presiding Judge Kevin Herlihy has done a great job, he said.

"I wouldn't be where I am today without the staff of the court and the people I've worked with," Judge Borenstein said.

Judge Borenstein didn't say how his appointment might impact the courts.

"I'm just interested in working as hard as I can and helping my colleagues carry on what are very difficult tasks on the superior court," he said.

Lt. Mooers to get trial date

By Don Staruk

The alleged incest case of former Andover Police Lt. Donald Mooers Jr. was continued in Salem Superior Court Monday to Tuesday, Sept. 15, for trial assignment, according to David Duncan, assistant Essex County district attorney prosecuting the case.

"Which means on the 15th of September we pick a trial date," Mr. Duncan said Tuesday.

The trial will probably begin in October or November, Mr. Duncan said.

Mr. Mooers, 51, of Hampton, N.H., was a 23-year veteran of the Andover police department when he abruptly retired on Dec. 17, 1991, one day before he was secretly indicted on six charges of incest. Mr. Mooers was arraigned on Jan. 6 and is free on his personal recognizance.

Court rules against town in bowling alley case

The developers were denied a building permit to renovate the building into six or eight small retail shops.

The town has 30 days to appeal the decision. Thomas Urbelis, town counsel, said Tuesday he was waiting to receive the judge's orders in the case, due this week, and would not speculate on the impact of the decision on other Planning Board actions. Mr. Urbelis said no decision has been made on whether the town would appeal the decision and that he had not discussed the town's next move with Buzz Stapczynski, town manager, or the selectmen. He withheld further comment.

The developers have a separate federal lawsuit filed against the town claiming $6 million in damages for the delay in development. That case has been on hold pending the outcome of the land court case and may now move forward, according to Reginald Marden, attorney for the developers.

"Given the strong language of the decision, I'd be inclined to move forward on the federal case during the appeal," Mr. Marden said Tuesday.

Last week's land court decision was actually three cases combined into one, according to Mr. Marden.

The first was an appeal of Building Inspector Sam DeSalvo's decision not to issue a building permit because of the parking bylaw. It included an appeal of the subsequent Zoning Board of Appeals' decision upholding the building inspector's finding.

The second case was an appeal of the Planning Board's decision that turned down the developers' request to reduce the number of parking spaces required from 87 to 12, which is the existing parking on the site.

The third issue was a petition in the land court seeking a declaration of the developers' rights under the bylaw.

Judge Sullivan found against the town on the first and third points, which made moot the Planning Board case.

"The town of Andover has by legislative fiat attempted to make a silk purse of a sow's ear under circumstances where it is impossible even in this era of medical miracles," Judge Sullivan's decision began.

"I find and rule that, as applied to the plaintiffs' land, the bylaw is arbitrary if not indeed unconstitutional," she wrote. "Accordingly, I annul the decision of the Zoning Board of Appeals with instructions that the building inspector's ruling be reversed and he be ordered to issue a building permit upon presentation of plans in accordance with the Massachusetts building code."

The decision of the Planning Board not to allow the reduction in the number of spaces "is legally untenable and arbitrary, capricious and whimsical. I would annul the board's decision and remand the matter to the board for reconsideration if I had not already resolved the controversy with my decision in the other two cases," she wrote.

A state land court judge last week found the town was wrong in applying the 1985 parking bylaw to the former bowling alley building on Park Street and ordered the building inspector to issue a building permit to the developers.

The decision found the parking bylaw, as it relates to pre-existing buildings, to be illegal in that it violates state zoning statutes, and unconstitutional in that it constituted a land taking in this case, according to Mr. Marden.

Mr. Osgood, of North Andover, was pleased with the land court decision.

"It's another hurdle we've gotten over," Mr. Osgood said Tuesday. "Certainly I'm happy with it."

What happens next depends on whether the town files an appeal, according to Mr. Osgood.

"It doesn't seem we can go forward with pending litigation," he said. "We just have to wait and see."

If there is no appeal, Mr. Osgood will resubmit his plans to renovate the building into six or eight retail shops, he said. But he wasn't sure when that would happen.

"I'm not sure whether we'll resubmit them immediately," he said.

He has two years from the date of the judge's decision, barring any appeal, to submit a plan before the property would be considered abandoned.

"I'd like to solve the problem. That's been my feeling from day one," Mr. Osgood said.

The building has been there a long time and it would be impossible to build the present day parking requirements on the site, he said. But Stephen Colyer, planning director, doesn't seem to want to accept the fact that the bylaw is wrong or try and solve the problem, Mr. Osgood said.

He also said the judge has a high degree of expertise in her field and her decision was well thought out.

"I don't think it's a slap-shot type decision," he said.

He didn't agree with an opinion attributed to Mr. Colyer in a news article this week that the decision may not have been fair.

"I don't necessarily agree with Stephen Colyer that this judge is a bad judge," Mr. Osgood said.

Mr. Colyer said Tuesday that he did not say that Judge Sullivan was a bad judge.

"I don't think that is a fair statement," Mr. Colyer said.

What he said was that, in "a lot" of the approximately 10 of Judge Sullivan's decisions he has read, she has come down on the side of the land owner or property developer, Mr. Colyer said.

"I never said she was a bad judge," he said. "I'm not going to sit here and bad mouth a judge."

Mr. Osgood said Judge Sullivan's decision not only found in his favor, but "castigates" a Planning Board that's gone astray.

"I think it's telling the Planning Board, 'Don't bring more of these (cases) back to me,'" Mr. Osgood said.

Mr. Osgood has had no offers from the town to work out the problems with his property, he said.

"Nothing substantial," he said. "And that has to happen at some point in time."

Despite the land court decision, it costs an awful lot of money to let a building just sit there, Mr. Osgood said, and he has suffered significant financial losses because of the delay.

"There's still a huge damage issue out there," Mr. Osgood said. "You can't just kiss and make up. It doesn't go away."

Buzz Stapczynski did not comment on the decision. Mr. Colyer, like Mr. Urbelis, would not speculate on what impact the decision could have on other Planning Board petitions, or the parking bylaw.

"I have no idea on impact," Mr. Colyer said. "I haven't read her decision in any depth yet."

But any bylaw decision has wider ramifications than just one specific case, Mr. Colyer said.

History of the site

Mr. Osgood and Mr. Richards purchased the bowling alley building, at 32-34 Park St., in July of 1986 for $1.2 million. Prior to that it was operated as a bowling alley with accessory retail uses for items related to bowling, and for the wholesale sale and repair of bowling machinery and equipment.

The developers stopped the bowling operation and gutted the building, with a demolition permit from the town, in preparation for renovations.

In August of 1987 the building inspector denied a building permit to remodel the building for retail use, citing failure to comply with the requirements of the 1985 parking bylaw.

The developers appealed to the zoning board in September, and in November were denied the appeal when the board upheld the building inspector's decision. An appeal was then filed in Essex Superior Court, also in November 1987.

In March of 1988, the developers filed for a special permit with the Planning Board to reduce the number of spaces required from 87 to the 12 available. That petition was denied in May of 1988 and that decision was appealed to Essex Superior Court in June 1988. The building has been vacant since 1987.

Judge Sullivan found that the town did not accept any of the developers' offers for compromise, including an offer of $100,000 to use toward construction of municipal parking, and "refused to suggest acceptable alternatives."

"The (developers) also attempted, as suggested by the town's unrealistic planners, to interest abutters in a joint solution, but none of them were willing to participate," she wrote.

Bylaw

The intent of the 1985 bylaw amendment, which was written during a time of economic plenty in a bustling central business district, was to have new developments include adequate parking for their intended uses, thereby lifting that burden from the town.

The bylaw says that pre-existing, nonconforming buildings and uses need not meet the requirements, unless there is a change in use. The change from a bowling alley to retail stores constitutes a change of use, according to the interpretation of town officials, and requires the developers to conform to the 1985 restrictions.

Judge Sullivan said the bylaw should not be applied to the bowling alley building because the building existed prior to adoption of the bylaw.

"The requirements were sensible as to new construction, but violated constitutional provisions as applied," she wrote. "Whatever use is made of the premises, the lot cannot comply with the 1985 parking regulations, and it is alleged that many other properties in the district are similarly afflicted. If this is in fact the case, serious doubts are cast on the validity of the bylaw amendment."

"The concept of imposing stringent regulations on existing buildings on existing lots is fundamentally wrong. It limits the issue of the locus to a narrow and undesirable category and forces the abandonment of creative use of old buildings," Judge Sullivan wrote. "It is unrealistic and worse, unconstitutional to deprive the trustees of a permitted use because of such legislation."

EDITORIALS

A predicted eyesore

(The following editorial, written by former Townsman editor Bob Finneran, appeared in the May 5, 1988 issue of the paper. It is reprinted only in part. See related story on today's page 1.)

The continued prohibition to provide some relief to the owners of the former Andover Lanes bowling alley property would seem to be a threat to any possible development there.

Owners of the property have been refused permission to develop the property by the Zoning Board of Appeals and the Planning Board because there are insufficient parking spaces available as stipulated by a 1985 town meeting approved bylaw.

Russ Moran, chairman of the Planning Board, said that the purpose of the bylaw was to force developers to provide adequate parking facilities rather than relying on the town for such relief.

Such an attitude seems somewhat utopian in nature.

The town could bend a little and allow the developers to use the municipal parking lot across the street as some sort of relief to the problem. After all, a similar situation exists in a nearby shopping area.

(Counsel for the developers), Reginald Marden, is also right when he states that a retail store on Main Street was converted to a bank without any consideration of new parking bylaw provisions.

It does not seem that 85 spaces would be necessary for the type of retail shop development planned for the Park Street area.

It would seem that the town would be better served by insuring that any conversion of the building be aesthetically acceptable to the business area, rather than worrying about making developers produce a monumental parking lot.

Failing to provide some sort of relief to the property owners would certainly appear to be a threat to the appearance and economic health of the downtown area. Unable to meet the stipulated parking requirements, the property could lie idle, and ultimately, become an eyesore.

Frankly, there should be some sort of compromise the town could reach with the property owners to avoid such a possibility.

Andover man hits homer at Fenway; Local kids hit homers for homeless

By Perry Colmore Catlin

Andover resident Ken Levine batted two balls last weekend that hit the wall at Fenway Park and one that made it over the fence and out of the park. Claudia Simon, also of Andover, is collecting clothes and goods for those made homeless in southern Florida by Hurricane Andrew.

Believe it or not, the two stories are related. They are both about Andover residents reaching out to help others.

The first is about a Fantasy Day sponsored by John Hancock of Boston to benefit the Jimmy Fund, which raises money for cancer research.

A team of four people could pay $5,000 for the chance to hit three balls each at Fenway Park. John Hancock would pay $1,000 to the Jimmy Fund for every ball that either hit the wall or made it over the wall. And the team had to pay $5,000 to play.

Ken Levine of Andover, who works in New Hampshire for a manufacturer of computer network equipment, hit two off the wall and one over the wall. He was the only person that day, last Saturday, who hit one over the wall.

"I have always wanted to hit at Fenway Park," he told me this week.

So that was $8,000 for the Jimmy Fund. But that's not all. Mr. Levine, whose brother, Marc, died in 1987 of cancer ("A lot of this, I do for him."), had said he would match each $1,000 John Hancock paid for his hits. So Mr. Levine made a total of $11,000 Saturday for the fund.

Mr. Levine, the father of an 18-month-old daughter who he says will hear a lot about this when she's older, played ball at Worcester Academy, for the American Legion and in various summer leagues.

Twenty-three teams were involved in Fantasy Day, which raised a total of $130,000 for the Jimmy Fund.

Another Andover resident, Lawrence C. Cancro of Pole Hill Drive, was also involved in Fantasy Day. He is vice president of marketing the Boston Red Sox. Fantasy Day was the idea of Mr. Cancro and former Red Sox player Mike Andrews, who is now the executive director of the Jimmy Fund. Monday, Mr. Cancro and I talked about the event, and about Ken Levine's unbelievable hits. "He had a hell of a day for himself," said Mr. Cancro, who has worked for the Sox eight years.

Mr. Cancro has worked in baseball 15 years, starting as assistant general manager to a minor league and six years as sales manager and other jobs with the Atlanta Braves. But working for the Red Sox is his "dream job." When Mr. Cancro, who grew up in New York, was a student at Boston University, he used to drop by Fenway Park often, looking for a job. So now he works there, promoting the Red Sox.

The second story is about a bunch of children and some adults in the Johnson acres area helping collect goods for those made homeless by Hurricane Andrew.

Claudia Simon, of 49 Cheever Circle, told me that she'd been listening to news about the hurricane on the radio. When she heard 200,000 to 250,000 people were made homeless by the storm, she made a financial contribution to the Red Cross. Her 5 1/2-year-old daughter, Emma Wollman, asked if she could

LETTERS

John Desmond's parents worked in the mills here

Editor, Townsmen:

I would like to start by commending Townsmen reporter Don Staruk for his articles on me and my two Democratic opponents. ("Four want to be state rep." Aug. 27, page 1.) From my perspective, it was a job well done.

There is one correction, however, that I feel I should make. I was not born and raised in "The Acre" section of Lowell. My mother was born and raised there and her family lived there throughout much of my life. When my mother and father were young, they worked in the mills that were still operating at that time. During the work day I and my younger brother would be placed in the care of members of my family on my mother's side. As a result, I spent a great deal of time in "The Acre" as I was growing up, but, much to my regret, I cannot claim that I was born there.

This should in no way reflect badly on Mr. Staruk. In my nostalgic ramblings of these simpler times, it is easy to see now he would reach the conclusion that I was born and raised in this section of the city of Lowell. If it is of any interest to anyone (and I doubt that it is), the area of Lowell that the Desmond family is identified with is a section known as "Lower Belvidere." I apologize for the misunderstanding.

One other thing, even though it is true that "The Acre" started out as an Irish slum, it became an area that was home to many waves of immigrants. "The Acre" was the home to people of Lebanese, Greek, Irish and many other ethnic backgrounds. Many of these people still speak with pride of their "Acre" roots.

I realize that this has nothing to do with my campaign for state representative here in Andover, but I do not wish to give the people in my district any false impressions about my background.

Mike Frishman backs Rep. Atkins

Editor, Townsmen:

One of the most important considerations in the upcoming election that should become part of the debate about the economy is the need to think past the military economy.

One of the various topics I have discussed with Congressman Chet Atkins over the years is this subject and, as usual, he was already way ahead of me. His knowledge and familiarity with the subject were broad, enlightened and insightful. He and I discussed such proposals as using money presently in the defense budget to retool and retrain within existing businesses for the production of non-military items.

I quote from a recent letter from him to me on the subject: "We must have programs which facilitate the conversion from military to civilian production and provide relief to those communities which will be adversely affected by this process. I am co-sponsor of HR 2377, a bill which would provide hiring preference for civilian employees of the Department of Defense who are separated as a result of base closures."

He went on to cite several other pieces of legislation, including one to provide relief to communities affected by "defense drawdown" and added that he would be closely following and contributing to the progress of all of this legislation - legislation which could be very important to the Merrimack Valley.

Congressman Atkins continues to surprise me with the degree to which he is a knowledgeable contributor to the serious and important democratic process of governing our country. We have too few individuals who responsibly and with dedication devote themselves to this vital process. I have been impressed ever since I first met Chet Atkins nearly eight years ago with the seriousness and integrity with which he treats the responsibility of one of the oldest, often also endless and thankless, responsibilities of mankind.

Senate candidate refutes local letter

Editor, Townsmen:

My name is Paul Lambert and I am a candidate for the State Senate seat being vacated by Sen. Patricia McGovern. This is my first shot at elected public office.

I am writing in response to a letter to the editor from one Robert Burke, 10 Pasho St., Andover, dated Aug. 27. ("Resident backs Lambert and Meehan," page 33.) Mr. Burke, you misquoted me in your letter. What I had said was that Marty Meehan, like myself, is one who has had to work his way up from the streets of the city, not the "political ranks."

For your information I have never been in the employ of any local, state or federal government entity. I am the only political outsider in this state Senate race. Every other candidate running has very strong political ties and interests, and most have been on the public payroll. I have never been on the public payroll.

As a student at the University of Lowell, I had interned in the Lawrence office of the Fifth Congressional District; and as a student at the New England School of Law I had interned in the Boston office of the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency.

From the age of 14 I have had to work to pay for high school (Central Catholic '82), U. Lowell '86, graduate school (University College, Cardiff, Wales '89), and New England School of Law '90. I have worked as an electrician's helper, an orderly in a nursing home and I continue to work in the field of industrial security, where I have more than nine years of experience as a line worker and as a supervisor. I am also an attorney at law in my own practice in the Merrimack Valley. All of these jobs have been in the private sector, which is something most of my opponents cannot say.

I am not an "ambitious political climber" as you put it, in fact I am the only candidate in this race who has promised to limit my terms as a state Senator to three. I have challenged the others to join me, but they appear to want to make politics their career.

I am running for the state Senate because, as a life long resident of the Merrimack Valley, I am sick and tired of the games being played on Beacon Hill. I am going to Boston to work for the people of Andover, Billerica, Lawrence and Tewksbury. I am going to work for a government for the people and not for the politicians.

I don't know who exactly you work for Mr. Burke, but perhaps now that the facts are clearly laid out, you and everyone else in our Senate district can plainly see that I am the only political newcomer and outsider. I owe no allegiance to anyone, except the people of Andover, Billerica, Lawrence and Tewksbury.

Pomps Ponds water is clear and clean

Editor, Townsmen:

This summer the water at Pomps Pond is clearer and cleaner than at any time in my experience (18 years.) The swimming is delightful. Also, there is lots of nice fine beach sand for walking on and playing in and the beach and waterfront are well run and clean. Cheers and thanks to the Department of Community Services, Friends of Pomps Pond, Conservation Commission and other town bodies who have cooperated and worked to provide spring weed harvesting for two years now, and who have promoted support and interest in this valuable town recreation facility.

Ten dollars is certainly a modest amount for a family summer pass to use Pomps Pond. I would suggest a little higher fee so that the beach can remain open through Labor Day.

'We are buried in plastics, glass'

Editor, Townsmen:

Thank you to Nancy R. Redman for taking the time to write the letter ("Why can't recycling be simple?" Aug. 20, page 25.) We've wanted to write for a long time.

We are committed to recycling but find it inconvenient and frustrating to have only one Saturday available for drop off and alternate weeks for glass and paper. It seems like it would be much more successful and, therefore, cost efficient if we followed some of her suggestions, specifically a drop-off container located in a convenient, central location. Please help. We are buried in plastics, paper and glass.

Andover hits home runs

So they decided to collect toys, clothing, disposable diapers, paper goods, spring water, blankets and other bedding, hand tools, tents and more to send to Florida. The Salvation Army gave Ms. Simon, who is a freelance editor and designer of textbooks, a list of what is needed. The Mail Room on Bartlet Street copied the fliers that the Johnson acres kids drew and the project was off and rolling.

A neighbor, 12-year-old Julie Viola, "got fired up" about the project, Ms. Simon told me, so Emma and Julie did a lot of the work. They left bags at people's houses and in return received food, blankets, paper goods and much more.

"One guy gave six cartons of sleeping bags," Ms. Simon said.

I told her I'd read over the weekend that the Florida communities have received so much food and clothing that distribution is behind contribution and that food is rotting and clothes are getting wet. She'd read that too, but wasn't discouraged.

"Even if it doesn't get down there and doesn't all get used, it will not be wasted," said Ms. Simon, who moved here a year ago from Boston with her husband, Keith Wollman, who in publishing.

She said there are homeless people everywhere, so the goods could be used somewhere else, if not in Florida. She said the kids are so excited about the project they're thinking of making the project - collecting goods for the homeless - an annual event.

(Editor's note: The Townsman from time to time lists volunteer opportunities in the area. Send opportunities to the Townsman, 33 Chestnut St., Andover 01810, or fax them to 508-470-2819.)

Challenge Unlimited is holding a workshop for volunteers Thursday, Sept. 10, from 6:30 to 8:30 p.m.

The organization was founded in 1983 by Dick Donovan, owner of Ironstone Farm, located at 456 Lowell St. The therapeutic riding program is designed for people with physical, mental or emotional disabilities. From grooming and saddling horses to riding, each exercise is progressively structured to increase self-discipline and lengthen the student's attention span.

Volunteers, who should be at least 12 years old, are needed to serve more than 175 students per week. Moderate physical activity is required, i.e. walking and some jogging. No prior experience or background with horses is needed.

Call Dede O'Brien, director of Challenge Unlimited, at 475-4056.

Understanding Chiropractic

by Mark F. DeLorenzo, D.C.

OVERWEIGHT CONDITIONS

Not only is excess body fat linked to such conditions as heart disease and cancer, but it carries the potential for the more immediate effect of stressing the back. Just as a car's shock absorbers will become prematurely worn by constant overloading, carrying extra weight places undue stress on the spinal discs. These fibrous pillows of gelatin-like material act as cushioning devices (shock absorbers) between the bones (vertebrae) of the spine. If they are constantly subjected to compression by excess body weight, they are likely to lose their cushioning ability or even rupture. Chiropractic physicians recognize the link between nutrition, exercise, and spinal integrity, and consider all facets of a patient's life when endeavoring to promote health and discourage disease.

If you are having problems with controlling your weight, pain, stress, headaches, etc., maybe we can help. We offer natural, gentle and safe treatments for many disorders and all ages. Please call for more information at DELORNEZO CHIROPRACTIC GROUP, 475-5042. Our office is located at 15 Central Street. Have a happy and safe Labor Day!

P.S. An overweight person is also likely to have weak abdominal muscles, which further contribute to back pain by shifting the strain to the back muscles.

Your Dental HEALTH

by Richard D. Hopgood, D.M.D.

ALL THINGS BEING EQUAL

The procedure known as equilibration may be performed in conjunction with periodontal, orthodontic, or temporomandibular treatment to help stabilize teeth. Its goal is to produce a balanced bite in which the upper and lower sets of teeth mesh together evenly. When the bite is in proper balance, chewing pressure is transferred directly down to the root of each tooth. Were the teeth to exert chewing pressure to the sides, it would promote looseness of the teeth. By smoothing out high spots in the bite, the dentist helps the teeth to avoid making chewing contact with one another at wrong angles. In some cases, only a few teeth are involved. In any case, the grinding is limited to the tooth's outer enamel and is not painful.

A good experience with dentistry is based on choosing the right dentist who your family can trust, as well as taking the necessary steps to keep dental problems at bay through self-care at home between dental visits. If it's been awhile since you've been to the dentist, make an appointment with us today. Your smile could depend on it. We are currently accepting new patients here at 296 Lowell Street, Rt 133 (with easy access off Rt 93). Hours: Mon & Thur 10-8, Tues & Fri 8-6, and by appointment. Phone: 475-2431. P.S. The dentist locates high spots by having patients bite down on paper which leaves a mark on areas of contact.

She has made decoupage her art form

By Mary Katis

A decoupage class at the Lawrence YMCA opened the door for Joyce Cooper's artistic talents. She had studied art history at Barnard College and graduated from Boston University. She studied for two and a half years with Hiram Manning, a master of decoupage in Boston, and Isabel O'Neill, of New York, author of Art of the Painted Finish, faux finishes with tortoise shell, marbling, lapis, granite.

Ms. Cooper, of 844 Salem St., North Andover, was born in Lawrence and worked with her father in his trucking and warehouse business in Lawrence. The warehouse became Ms. Cooper's first classroom. Norman Seifel, a former director of adult education in North Andover, asked Ms. Cooper to teach a decoupage class. Mr. Seifel's request opened another door in Ms. Cooper's life.

"I have been teaching for 22 years," said Ms. Cooper. "I work on boxes, frames, many different shapes, to give people inspiration and to give them ideas."

"When I was young, you didn't try to paint or draw unless you were an artist. Now children draw and use different art mediums."

Students can find what they like in her studio and learn how to use their hands. She thinks it is good for children to be exposed to many art forms in school. Several years ago she taught children at the Atkinson School, in North Andover, to paint and decorate bird houses.

She exhibited her decoupage work in 1973 at the first Wenham craft fair, which is sponsored by the Wenham Museum. This year, her was exhibited again at the Wenham one-day craft fair in mid-August.

Ms. Cooper pursued the master craftsman level of the International Guild of Decoupage, an art form that was developed in France and Italy. The guild members are Europeans and Canadians, Chinese, Koreans, Japanese and Americans. The master level work is juried in 16 categories of expertise by the guild. Examples of some of the categories are mother of pearl, curved glass, under glass and furniture.

"I pursued the master level 10 years ago as a challenge," said Ms. Cooper. "The guild requirements keep standards high."

She earned the master craftsman level and has exhibited twice with her students at the Wenham Museum and has juried shows of contemporary craftsmen.

Students come to her from the South Shore, Natick, Wellesley, Hamilton, Wenham and the local area. Classes are small and individualized. Tin planters are very popular with her decoupage students. The planters are covered with wrapping paper or cards and 50 coats of varnish with one finishing application of wet sanding. Another popular medium is glass, which doesn't require too much time to complete. The wrapping paper or cutouts are applied to the inside of the glass and painted from behind. The paint acts like a varnish. Caspari wrapping paper is recommended by Ms. Cooper because the prints have brilliant color and the paper is a good quality and weight.

Joyce Cooper has a studio in North Andover that's full of her artwork, especially decoupage. She started with a class in decoupage several years ago at the Lawrence YMCA, and now she is a master, teaching others.

Wooden, papier-mache, tin or metal frames are on display in her studio. She uses an acrylic varnish, a water base varnish, for frames and other decoupage work. Varnish is used in place of glue because the varnish is much easier to use on the frames, she said.

Elevation decoupage is another art form that is encouraged by Ms. Cooper. The medium uses paper cut-outs that are layered to produce a design. This style is displayed with a shadow box frame in her studio. Paper can be molded into a desired shape, Ms. Cooper said.

More and more students are attracted to a collage on plates, which requires only five coats of varnish and no sanding. Oriental plates, Chinoiserie, are finished with prints of Chinese hand scrolls.

Ms. Cooper's Japanese students use space without limits in their designs and enjoy great precision in paper cutting. In contrast, the western eye is accustomed to the Victorian design, which covers all the space. Decoupage is a very adaptable art form to the eastern mind, Ms. Cooper said.

Stencil making is taught in class or students can choose from many of Ms. Cooper's original stencils. She uses a camera to take a picture of the desired subject and with the photograph makes a stencil in three steps, which overlap. She instructs her students to paint freehand over the stencil to cover the edges and give a finished look.

Looking for prints or cards to enhance decoupage and her love of museums have led her to travel through Europe and Canada. She was surprised that in Eastern Germany, Dresden and Meissen, all the pottery and china was exported, leaving nothing to be purchased there.

"Students continue to repeat classes year after year and many have become friends," Ms. Cooper said.

People from different walks of life study in her studio and they create decoupage to have in their homes, give away or sell for profit.

"Students can relieve stress when they are creating something," she said. "Doing things with your hands, you are forgetting troubles."

AARP meets here on Sept. 8

The next meeting of the Wilmington Area Evening Chapter of AARP will be Tuesday, Sept. 8, at 7:30 p.m. at the North Andover Senior Citizen Center. An AARP representative will discuss AARP's proposed health plan "Health Care America." This plan has been developed over the past three years, combining the best features of many plans from countries around the world. The plan will be presented to all AARP chapters for discussion and evaluation before being presented to Congress later this year.

Anyone over age 50 is welcome to attend and guests are invited to be part of this presentation. Light refreshments will be served. There is ample parking at the North Andover Senior Citizens Center. For more information, call 658-2938 or 658-2917.

CHEF'S CORNER

Andover Inn

Tom Arbuckle

Summer is a great time for cooking because of the variety and availability of excellent quality fresh vegetables. And, if you have a bit of a green thumb, your own home-grown varieties lend their bit of flavor to your table. Summer is also the time to set away your store for winter, whether it be canned, pickled or frozen; my favorite is making flavored vinegars and oils. They give a real boost to salads, marinades and cooking. They are simple to make and keep well. The "rules" are few and the varieties only limited by your taste and imagination. Use well-cleaned bottles or jars with tight-fitting covers or corks. Use the best quality oils and vinegars. Use well-cleaned, blemish- and insect-free herbs and spices. To make oils, fill the jar with herbs and cover with oil. Store in a sunny place for a few weeks and it will be ready to use. Dill, garlic and chives for salads; bay leaves, oregano, basil for pastas or marinades; mint, garlic, hot peppers for chicken or vegetables. For vinegars, use one cup of fresh herbs for one quart of vinegar. Again, just fill the jar with herbs and cover with vinegar. Store in a cool dark place for three to four weeks before using. Tarragon, black pepper for meats and salads; dill and garlic for salads and meats; lemon, thyme and rosemary for meats or chicken. Now to put it all together, go to your garden and pick a few greens for your salad and whip together a vinaigrette with your store of flavored oils and vinegars.

Herbed vinaigrette

1/4 cup vinegar (red wine, chive, garlic, dill)
1/2 tsp. salt
pinch of black pepper
1/2 tsp. dry mustard
3/4 cup oil (olive oil, basil, tarragon, garlic)
2 tbs. chopped parsley

Combine vinegar, salt, pepper and mustard. Gradually beat in the oil and blend in parsley. Yields one cup.

Three fight for chance to challenge John Harris

with the governor in a dignified fashion and not necessarily working as a rubber stamp. I think that I have had something to do with that and I want to continue improving the system," Mr. Harris said.

On his list is designing a court reform package that will "bring more accountability and job performance evaluations for judges similar to the one for the Industrial Accident Board."

He'd also like to see more and better computerization of court records. That will result in better internal management within the court system, he said. Restraining orders taken out by women and their children who suffer abuse will be better organized and more effective, Mr. Harris said.

"This year the Governor's Council has been involved in more confirmations of judges than we have seen in a decade. We have more meetings and hearing and that allows the public to have more input," he said.

Listening to the public has also led Mr. Harris to support designing limitations on judicial terms instead of lifetime appointments that currently exist.

"Now, once a judge is appointed he is out of everyone's control."

Edward Carroll, 53, and his wife, Claire, and their four daughters live in Lynn, where he was born and raised. Mr. Carroll was educated in Lynn's parochial schools and graduated from St. Mary's Boys High School, where he was class president.

For more than 20 years he was a production foreman at the former J.J. Nissen Baking Co. in Lynn. In 1980, Mr. Carroll joined the Essex County sheriff's office and has been a corrections officer at the Lawrence House of Corrections. A major in the sheriff's office, he supervises more than 2,000 inmates in the facility's kitchen in a pre-release program.

Mr. Carroll also works part time as a processor server for the Salem court.

Qualifications

Mr. Carroll is a 25-year member of the Teamsters union and is a member of the Knights of Columbus, where he was a former grand knight and supervised four district councils.

"I am a leader and an organizer. I can bring strong leadership to the (Governor's) Council. I don't vote on party lines and I'm not afraid to make a decision," he said.

Mr. Carroll said his experience as a corrections officer has taught him how to make decisions while under pressure.

Why run for Governor's Council?

Mr. Carroll believes the eight members of the council are more powerful than those in the state Senate and House.

The council "has the governor's ear every Wednesday. Some of them can't even get in to see him. When the state

John Harris

Ronald Ford

Edward Carroll

Raffi Takesian

(under former Gov. Michael Dukakis) wanted to put in a sludge plant in East Bridgewater the 500 residents appealed to the Governor's Council. They turned it down and it was never built there," Mr. Carroll said.

He believes the Governor's Council is still a rubber-stamp board, regard less of what Mr. Harris says.

Mr. Carroll blasted Mr. Harris, and called for his resignation, because of the part he played in the Governor's Council reversal of its original rejection of a Republican judge to the Industrial Accidents Board.

"Mr. Harris buckled under the pressure of Gov. Weld and the lieutenant governor and voted the way he was told to vote," Mr. Carroll said.

"Mr. Harris, a Republican, has been Gov. Weld's errand boy on the restricting plan and now he is at it again by voting for a party member, who isn't qualified," he said.

Proposed changes

Mr. Carroll said he would advocate approving only judges who are strong administrators and are compassionate toward battered women.

He has devised a protection and aid program that would provide trained personnel to accompany police on domestic violence calls to assist police and victims. Federal and state grants are available, said Mr. Carroll, to fund the program that could be staffed through the sheriff's department and would keep track of restraining orders and "check up on women on the week ends when the incident rates are the highest," he said.

Ronald Ford, 55, lives in Methuen with his wife, Anne Ford. The couple have three sons and three daughters.

Mr. Ford owns Northern Industries, a computer supplies company. He was born and raised in Lawrence and is a graduate of Central Catholic High School. He attended Newman Preparatory School in Boston and Merrimack College night school. He also did course work in economics at Boston College.

Mr. Ford is a Korean War era veteran and served as a paratrooper from 1954 to '57.

Qualifications

After military service Mr. Ford became active in Democratic politics. He was a member of the Lawrence Democratic City Committee and in 1973 he was elected to the Methuen Town Council. Following a six-year hiatus, he was re-elected to the Methuen Town Council and is currently serving the final half of his seventh, two-year term.

"I was one of four incumbents, of nine, who were returned to office last November. I don't get entangled in personal things. I stick to issues," Mr.

Ford said.

For the past eight years, he has been a member of the Essex County Advisory Board, which oversees the county budget.

Mr. Ford said he ran unsuccessfully for a state Senate seat in 1982 and for a seat in the state House of Representatives in 1986.

Priorities

According to Mr. Ford, there are nine women currently in prison serving terms for killing their batterers, who should not be.

"If what happened to them is what I think it is, then their only crime was defending themselves against a violent aggressor who had a history of beating them. If a soldier did that out on a battlefield, he'd get a silver star," he said.

Mr. Ford said he will research the cases and if he finds his theories to be true, he will attempt to bring the facts before the parole board.

Raffi Takesian, 66, is 14-year veteran of the the Methuen Town Council. Mr. Takesian, who is single, was born and raised in Methuen. He is a World War II and Korean War veteran and a 1950 graduate of New England School of Law in Boston.

Mr. Takesian said he never practiced law, but instead worked as a civilian consultant to the U.S. Navy as a manpower specialists, determining adequate staffing for Navy installations.

Priorities

"I'm sick of these criminals who are convicted of drug crimes, who are worth $15 and $16 million getting just two- and three-year sentences. We need to appoint judges who are going to be harder on these drug pushers," he said.

"If I had my way I'd hang them all," Mr. Takesian said.

He said the Governor's Council should be investigating nominations more than it currently does. He would want to know where nominees stand on sentences for convicted felons.

Mr. Takesian puts domestic batterers in the same category as felons.

"If a man beats his wife I wouldn't give him a suspended sentence. If he does it once he'll do it twice," he said.

Mr. Takesian labels himself a conservative "from the old school." He believes more judges with his get-tough philosophy against drug pushers should be appointed.

Coming next week in the Townsman: profiles on those running for Pat McGovern's state Senate seat.

He also competed for the New England team men's 9-10-year-old 200-meter free relay team, which finished second overall, and on the 400-meter medley relay team.

Meghan is the daughter of Tim and Valorie Hayes. Richard is the son of David and Diane Sheldon. Carlton Cronin, former Andover resident, is head coach of the Haverhill Y swim team; Tony Paduauskas is assistant head coach.

10K Brodie Zetlan Race is Sept. 13

Sheila Brodie Zetlan of Andover died in April of 1990 at the age of 42 from breast cancer. She was the mother of two children. The Sheila Brodie Zetlan Breast Cancer Research Foundation was established in her memory for the purpose of raising money for breast cancer research.

The first annual Sheila Brodie Zetlan Breast Cancer Research Foundation 10K Memorial Road Race took place in September 1991. The race raised more than $17,000 and enabled the trustees to make their first foundation grant in January 1992 in the amount of $23,500 to Dr. Stephanie F. Williams, assistant professor of medicine at the University of Chicago Medical Center.

The second annual Sheila Brodie Zetlan Breast Cancer Research Foundation 10K Memorial Road Race will be held Sunday, Sept. 13, in Andover. A portion of the proceeds will be donated to the new Holy Family Hospital Cancer Center in Methuen.

Through this donation the hospital will be able to purchase a breast wedge filter. The breast wedge filter tray is an attachment that can be fitted to the state-of-the-art, 18 Mev new linear accelerator radiation treatment machine. This will greatly facilitate the precise treatment of breast cancer patients and reduce their treatment time. This new gadget will help give uniform dosage to the breast without skin reaction and excellent cosmetic results. The foundation has raised more than $54,000 since it was established in June 1990.

The TAC-sanctioned race is open to runners and walkers of all levels. Preregistration fee is $10; day of race entrance fee is $15. For further information, call Edward Kutchin at 475-4394.

Lowell State Senator Nancy Achin Sullivan and runner Joan Benoit Samuelson will co-chair the event.

When refinancing or buying a home, Andover Bank's Rate Lock/Re-Lock Option lets you lock in a rate at application for as long as 60 days with no points paid at the time of application. If rates decrease, you can take advantage of the lower rate (one time only) up to five business days prior to closing. Best of all, if rates should increase, Andover Bank guarantees the rate won't go above the rate offered when you applied.

So don't delay your application process simply because you think rates may go down. Apply now and our Rate Lock/Re-Lock option will provide you with the guarantee of a lower rate.

Style consultant offers tips to 'dress for success'

Landing a job in today's highly competitive market can be easier if you heed some expert advice.

Wearing the right clothing and accessories can really make a difference when you're trying to make a good impression on a job interview, said Frances Stelz, style consultant for Marchon & Marcolin Eyewear.

Some suggestions include:

- Dress the part. Attire can quickly tell a story about your work habits, your personality and self-image. A tailored suit is always suitable. Add discreet accessories — a handkerchief, lapel pin and small earrings. A one-piece dress is appropriate in some locales, accessorized with silk scarf, plain gold-tone earrings and matching necklace.

- Wear eyeglasses as a strategic maneuver. Applicants who wear eyeglasses instantly project a "to-be-recognized-with" image, a confident attitude, a higher I.Q. (maybe meriting a higher salary). Eye wear conveys authority, accomplishment and presence. A metal/plastic combination projects a no-nonsense, yet feminine look.

- The less makeup the better. Keep away from dark eyeliner, heavy mascara or too much eye shadow. The "shadow" means just that — a hint of color. Cheeks require no more than a dusting of blush.

- Don't overdo your hairdo. Short, cropped hair or long hair pulled into a modern upsweep is appropriate. If hair is naturally curly, be sure it's trimmed and shaped.

Eye wear makes statement

Keeping an eye on the latest fashions? Don't forget to take a look at what's new in eye wear.

Classic elements are mixed with unique details and colors in the season's newest eye wear, say experts at the Vision Industry Council of America (VICA).

Look for:

- Mixed, blended, mottled and marbled colors that make frames look almost like paintings, and new frame designs, from a modified cat's-eye shape to wrap-around, wider temples and decorative fluting on bridges.

- Thinner, lighter lenses that allow those with strong prescriptions to have a wider range of frame options.

- For men, vibrant-colored metal and plastic frames in a wide range of styles and shapes, from "preppy" to rectangular.

- Contact lenses to correct astigmatism, bifocal contacts and tinted contacts.

Intriguing fall fashions offered by Vena Coco

Looking for rare fashions and unusual accessories? Your search is over.

The Vena Coco Collection, through the archway at 93 Main St., Olde Andover Village, is slightly off the beaten path but well worth the trip.

This shop boasts a list of clients from as far away as California and Australia.

In business for more than 15 years, Ms. Coco has developed and maintained a wide-spread reputation as a fashion resource for women in search of original and innovative designs, fashion expertise and personal style.

"I believe that superb fabrics and purity of design contribute to the longevity of one's wardrobe," said Ms. Coco. "Superb simplicity enhanced by the most extraordinary accessories creates a sense of individual style."

Her knowledgeable staff offers professional expertise in helping clients evaluate their wardrobe needs and preferences and adapt their ever-changing fashion to their own image.

Staff member Kathy Doyle offers personal wardrobe consulting to all clients. Her creative talents in coordinating outfits are fully expressed in the many fashion events she assists in producing, both in the shop and for private organizations.

"This fall, we are presenting our 10th in-shop seasonal show," said Ms. Coco. "In response to its increasing popularity, we are providing an encore showing this year. Customers are invited to call the shop to reserve a seat for either Sept. 16 or 17."

"This special evening provides a great opportunity for viewing the fall collection fully coordinated and accessorized," she said.

Guests are welcome to remain after the show to shop or for assistance in putting together their own personal look. With customer service a top priority, special orders, alterations, personal shopping, gift certificates and free gift-wrapping are all available.

Understanding the busy woman, Ms. Coco reminds her customers that they can shop by appointment at hours convenient to them.

"To make dressing less stressing, we can have everything ready for you your size, your style - when you dash in. We keep your personal style and measurements in mind and on file," she said.

This fall marks the first anniversary of the introduction of Ms. Coco's own line of original designs in apparel and accessories.

"It has been an exciting venture to collaborate with our own in-house designer as we seek to meet the needs of those women who appreciate one-of-a-kind looks," she said.

"With this unique service, we are also able to provide wardrobing to those who otherwise might have difficulty finding clothing for their own proportions, taste or lifestyle."

Ms. Coco's original line of faux fur accessories has been accepted by the fashion industry and presented for the first time this year in Boston.

Stop in at this very accessible shop a little off the beaten path but well worth the trip.

Vena Coco offers fall tips

Fall is a season for renewal as the past becomes our road map for the future. What's old is new again - reinterpreted, re-invented, reborn.

In the '90s, we will be striving to affirm our individuality with straight-forward dressing that lives up to the demands of any occasion, according to Vena Coco. You can certainly see the brave new wave of change that's sweeping through fall fashions:

- Feminized menswear - Firm-structured jackets and slouchy trousers to vests, pinstripes and ties, designers are going for the menswear look, but always with a feminine twist - a touch of lace, a flash of leg. The color palette focuses mainly on neutrals with gray becoming the new black. Navy and brown are also key. Adding some spice are teals, mallards, apple red and woody violet.

- Skirting the issue - Long and lean are the news-makers, but it's one of the many options, so short skirts are by no means out. In this range of skirt silhouettes, Vena Coco will offer long and narrow, long and full, short and pleated and short and straight.

- On the wild side - Making an excursion into the fashion foreground are animal prints, particularly in accessories. It is a classic, sporty look that can be artfully and tastefully implemented.

- Getting comfortable - In sportswear we get comfortable with relaxed elegance. Gently pleated pants, softly shaped jackets, cozy sweaters, leggings and tights - all with an emphasis on easy care.

- Accessories - Focus your style with one perfect detail. Choose a magnificent vest, fabulous belt or striking piece of jewelry. Don't forget to top your outfit with the essential hat. Accessories are the finishing touches, the statement-makers.

Bay State Eye offers 'better buys for your eyes'

Dr. Dee C. Kahan at Bay State Eye Associates at 209A North Main St., Shawsheen Plaza, founded and owns Bay State Eye.

"We're a family-owned and run business; all the offices are owned by optometrists. We care about our patients' eye health and the way they look. My name is on the door, so it is very important to me that we provide the highest quality at the best prices," said Dr. Kahan.

The group of independently owned offices began in 1979 as a response to the large, impersonal optical chains. Bay State Eye's motto is "Better buys for your eyes."

The group provides high quality, personalized service at much lower prices, because its overhead is much lower than optical chain stores.

Bay State Eye provides a full range of ophthalmic services such as complete eye exams and glaucoma testing and retinal photography. Contact lens services include all new innovations, such as colored, disposables and bifocal contacts. Bay State Eye has a huge selection of designer as well as moderately priced eyewear.

At Bay State Eye, you're not just a number, you're a valued friend.

Ginny's redefines fall fashions for busy women

Ginny's versatile fall collection helps to redefine easy dressing for the busy woman. Fashion events have been scheduled through December.

The first event on Sept. 24 will preview the latest fashions for the transitional month of September through the cold winter months. It will be held outside on Ginny's deck.

A popular selection for any fall wardrobe should be Ginny's sweater sets in rich, autumn tones. The added bonus to this selection is the machine-washable label geared to today's busy woman.

As always, Ginny's has the very best selection of Edwin jeans in a variety of colors and sizes.

This year's newest colors include black, forest green, bronze, burgundy and the ever-popular stone-washed and denim.

Accessories available at Ginny's includes a wide range of items from hand-painted scarves to handcrafted jewelry.

Washable silk scarves are available in dynamic patterns, shades and shapes. Scarves are an important accessory that will coordinate or change an outfit altogether and Ginny's one-of-a-kind, handcrafted jewelry will personalize any outfit.

Ginny's clothing is just an accessory to a great attitude.

Ginny's offers a wide variety of women's fall fashions, such the sporty sweater featured at left and the dressier blouse at right. A number of fashion shows are scheduled through December that will feature many of Ginny's latest styles.
